| genuine question to BJP supporters regardign ECi vote chori, is political affiliation above India itself ? 450 comments i want to understand POV of those who support BJP and i actually want to understand how are they even denying or opposing the Leader of Opposition's allegations , which are from the ECI data itself. Are people actually not willing to see the Press conference just because its by Rahul Gandhi ? is political affiliation above the idea of Democracy for them. | r/AskIndia | phoenix_aspirant | NEGATIVE | pro-india | 1 | 2025-08-08 07:44 |

| India Semiconductor Mission is a political gimmick with no gains 71 comments Close to 80k crore will be spent and 6 plants have already been approved. But, anyone with a bit of knowledge about semiconductor industry will know that it has already gone wrong. Out of 6, just one - the Tata plant in Dholera is an actual fab - the place where silicon is converted into a chip. All the rest 5 are just OSATs (outsourced semiconductor assembly and testing). | r/india | NoReasonToLive99 | NEGATIVE | critical | 0 | 2025-07-01 07:44 |

| Why can't India and China develop relationship politically? Like what's the blocker here? 355 comments I see both India and China benefitting a lot from the fact that these two are the nations with highest population like almost 30% of the entire global market. If there were better trade relations, India and China can have rail and road infrastructure to trade and adding in Russia too, these three countries alone would be self sustainable. | r/AskChina | squidbutterpizza | NEGATIVE | critical | 1 | 2025-06-01 07:44 |

| From a disappointed Indian 351 comments I was born and raised in India, moved to the US for undergrad and have been living in the US for 15 years now. Despite the fact that I have no contact with my friends from high school at this point and I rarely stay in touch with Indian politics or pop culture, I am still an Indian living in America. I take a lot of pride and joy in witnessing India's economic and cultural progress over time. My value system is pretty much at odds with "narrow mindedness" of some Indians (based on my observation among the extended family members), but I always figured that Indians will just become more aware of the social injustice around them and start uniting against them as it further develops economically. Maybe I bought into the whole Maslow's hierarchy a little too much. I am afraid to say that it has only gotten worse. | r/india | neo_proto | NEGATIVE | critical | 1 | 2024-09-04 07:44 |

| Progress Report 147: The Indian Content Overhaul 160 comments Hello and welcome to the latest Progress Report for Kaiserreich, I'm Cazadorian, and today we will be focusing on something a bit different than usual. For those who have been living under a rock, at the end of last year we confirmed that the India rework that was announced five years ago has been cancelled. With it seeming very unlikely that a new India rework will suddenly begin and be then finished within the next few years, India runs the risk of remaining as the oldest content in the mod never to receive any significant updates or refreshes. To attempt to address this, we have put together a smaller update to hopefully bring India at least somewhat up to date. | r/Kaiserreich | dragonstomper64 | NEGATIVE | critical | 2 | 2025-06-01 07:44 |

Even the mighty soviet union didnt have that kind of power. It is an undeniable fact that most nations in the world are governed by corrupt people and CCP is effectively using it as an advantage. After buying off different governments and politicians, they dont have to care about ordinary people. Then, splashing money at the media, and they can change the whole narrative as we can see in the current epidemic. Scary thing is that even the most staunch activists are relatively silent about CCP atrocities while the rich are praising and kowtowing CCP. The protests by tribals against the Meitei community have left 54 dead, including an Indian Revenue Services officer who was dragged out of his house and killed by a mob and a police commando who was shot dead in his village. An MLA from the ruling BJP, who happened to be a Kuki tribal himself, was also attacked by the protestors. Army had to be deployed in the state and shoot-at-sight orders were issued to contain the riots. | How prevalent is the caste system and religious discrimination in India? 78 comments I'm from Tamil Nadu and I can say I never faced serious problems because of my caste, even though my community is labelled as a backward caste by the government. To give you an overview, my parents hail from small villages, but thankfully educated. Many of my relatives (my parents' generation) live in rural areas and villages, but still don't discriminate people or got discriminated(at least in my knowledge) and quite liberal in their views even though they weren't well educated due to poverty. We even had inter-caste and inter-religion marriages in our family(with parents' approval), but never faced serious backlash. | The Rise of Religious Extremism in India: Why Can't We Just Live as Good Humans? 10 comments I've been feeling really concerned about the growing religious extremism in India, and I want to share some thoughts and hear what others think. It's not just one community—both Hindu and Muslim extremism seem to be on the rise, and it's tearing us apart. Recently, I watched a video of Naseeruddin Shah, where he talked about how he doesn't understand the obsession with what happens after death (like heaven or hell). He said something like, "Why should I care about the afterlife? I want to live my current life as a good human." I found it refreshing because he was focusing on being a compassionate person in the present, not getting lost in religious dogma. But when I scrolled through the comments, I was shocked. | Incredibly disheartening to see the rise of the term, "lassi" to label Sikh men on the internet, in India. 302 comments Having grown up in Punjab, surrounded by people from every religion, life was always a lot of fun, and communal harmony was at its peak. Despite of what the media or the internet might tell you about Sikhs, Punjab to me has always been a super tolerant community, with love shared by everyone, let them be Sikh, Hindu, Muslim, Christian, Jain, Buddhist etc. And I spent 2 months at home again, and nothing has changed, there is no support for a Khalistani movement or whatever people might think there is. Is there a distrust in the current central government? Yes, to an extent. Is there a hate for other communities or for India in general to be labelled as anti national? But to give context: The 1984 anti-Sikh riots, also known as the 1984 Sikh Massacre, was a series of organised pogroms against Sikhs in India following the assassination of Indira Gandhi by her Sikh bodyguards. The assassination of Indira Gandhi was in retaliation to her order to the Indian Army to attack the Harmandir Sahib complex in Amritsar, Punjab, in June 1984. She is a child whose innocence was stolen in the most horrific way imaginable — raped repeatedly by 14 men over two years aged between 15 to 54 belonging to influential community. She is also a Dalit. To those unfamiliar with India's caste system, "Dalit" refers to the lowest rung in a centuries-old social hierarchy, historically branded as "untouchables." In a civilized society, it should have led to an uproar and what not. But in India, there will be selective uproar when anything bad happens to women of higher caste. If it happens to women from lower caste, its an inconvenience to those in power who will silence the victims. | Inherited Pain: How sickle cell reveals the intergenerational violence of caste 0 comments It is widely recognized that in the US, most sickle cell patients are African American, whereas in India, the majority of sickle cell patients belong to the Dalit, Bahujan and Adivasi communities, which are at bottom end of the caste hierarchy This hierarchical structure has historically justified discrimination against them and were socially ostracized, were often forced to live in caste segregated areas, away from higher-caste communities. They were denied access to public spaces such as temples, schools, and clean water sources. They had limited access to education, economic opportunities, and political power, perpetuating a cycle of poverty. | r/Sicklecell | crumbled_cookies | NEGATIVE | critical | 2 | 2025-07-31 07:44 |

| She Was Just a Child: The Hidden Horror of a 13 year old Lower Caste Dalit Girl's Ordeal in India 0 comments This girl isn't a headline. She isn't a statistic. She is a child whose innocence was stolen in the most horrific way imaginable — raped repeatedly by 14 men over two years aged between 15 to 54. She is also a Dalit. To those unfamiliar with India's caste system, "Dalit" refers to the lowest rung in a centuries-old social hierarchy, historically branded as "untouchables." Despite the fact that I have no contact with my friends from high school at this point and I rarely stay in touch with Indian politics or pop culture, I am still an Indian living in America. I take a lot of pride and joy in witnessing India's economic and cultural progress over time. My value system is pretty much at odds with "narrow mindedness" of some Indians (based on my observation among the extended family members), but I always figured that Indians will just become more aware of the social injustice around them and start uniting against them as it further develops economically. | JOURNALIST BEATEN BY BJP GOONS FOR ASKING ACCOUNTABILITY FROM THE GOVERNMENT 71 comments Have we sunk this low as a government? Is—this what our democracy has come to—beating up journalists for asking questions? I just came across some seriously messed-up news from Newslaundry, and I'm boiling with anger. Rakesh Sharma, a senior journalist with Dainik Jagran, was assaulted and chased by BJP workers like some street thug, all because he dared to ask their leaders a simple question. The journalist's crime? Asking why security incidents continue to occur under the current administration. For this basic act of accountability, they decided he needed to be "taught a lesson" through violence. | r/delhi | Addictedboy7 | NEGATIVE | critical | 2 | 2025-05-02 07:44 |

Initially, it seemed like a classic U.S.-led CIA coup—a familiar playbook in geopolitics. However, as events have unfolded, it is becoming more evident that the Indian deep state, specifically the BJP-RSS nexus, has been the driving force behind this chaos all along. | The Muslim Rashtriya Manch (RSS affiliated) in it's book Yoga & Islam says that "Namaaz is one sort of Yoga asana". Although they are not much influential, this agenda / propaganda is far more dangerous. 11 comments In 2015 the MRM published a book titled 'Yoga & Islam' to promote Yoga's 'Universal Appeal'. This book was released by the Union AYUSH Ministry thus stamping it with Government Approval. This attempt to make Muslims do things associated with Hindus, making statements like 'All Muslims should recognize that their ancestors were Hindus' etc. is far graver concern. This is an example of cultural / minority destruction by assimilation. If this succeeds the Minority officially becomes a part of the Majority and then is treated differently with the Majority community. | Next Uttar Pradesh is Punjab ? Undeclared media blackout situation. 6 comments Right now Punjab is in a serious mess. The ruling Akali regime is using all means to suppress any voice which exposes their misdeeds and criticize govt.. They have a complete monopoly over sand distribution, cable network, transport. Badal Jr. recently allegedly warned several big business houses (Hero cycles, Creamica) to either sell their shares to Badal family or GTFO of the state. The most alarming of all the wrong happening in the state is the attack on freedom of press. They recently forced one of the prominent media figure of the state and a channel editor to quit. His story, filled with danger, redemption, and sacrifice, resembles a real-life thriller that spans decades of Kashmir's insurgency. Now 56, Mushtaq walks quietly in the garden of his home in Pulwama, South Kashmir — a man once feared and revered, known by many names: James Bond, Romeo, and Ishfaq. | Babasaheb Ambedkar opposed the military occupation of Kashmir, arguing those funds should instead be used for our people's welfare. He wanted Kashmir's partition and openly criticized the government's actions. 13 comments Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: I do not know that. If we were informed that our relations with certain foreign countries were not happy, that there might be any time a danger to our safety and to our security, it would be possible for most of us to agree that rather than wait for the arrival of the danger, we should keep the Army ready so that in an emergency we may face the danger squarely. But we are told that we have no enemy at all in this world. Then, why this army is maintained, I do not quite know. Secondly, the only possible enemy, if one may use that word, is probably Pakistan. | An attack happened against Indian troops in Kashmir that left over 40 of their troops dead. There is outrage in India, but it is INCREDIBLY selective: 50 Kashmiris were murdered in Jan/Feb & 11,000+ Muslim women gangraped since 1989: facts which have repeatedly been met with silence by Indians 67 comments Typically—and this is what gets me angry—is that Islam WILL be blamed for this attack as a convenient excuse, when there is more than ample proof this has been caused by the actions of the Indian army. This is pretty much like Israel crying about it's soldiers dying when all they've been doing is systematically murdering Palestinians and stealing their land. | What does Canada gain by hosting the Khalistan movement? 61 comments Given the bloody history of the Khalistan movement, which includes Canada's worst terrorist attack and the assassination of an Indian Prime Minister, why does the Canadian establishment give a benevolent eye to the movement? Sure, violence has plummeted, but that doesn't mean that the Indian government would soften its stance against the separatists. Yes, not every Sikh separatist is a terrorist, but that didn't stop thousands of innocent people from losing their lives. The Khalistan movement will always be of vital importance to whoever rules India given the suffering it caused. That could be seen in the Indian government's response to the uptick in violent rhetoric, which led to the assassination in Canada. | India is an anti-fun country 134 comments India is r/unitedstatesofindia the most anti-fun country ever.A day ago or two ago, Ed Sheeran's performance on Church Street (Bangalore) was cut short by a cop. Ed claimed to have the permission to perform there, but the cop stopped his performance nonetheless. The very same cops who seem to have no qualms with Church Street teeming with hawkers and annoying youtubers and instagram "influencers". The very same cops who turn a blind eye to Church Street being a large scale demonstration of Brownian motion. Church Street used to be a place of fascination and novelty. Going there felt like an occasion in and of itself but it's not the same anymore. (I stand corrected. Ed did not have the permission to perform there.) | | Alexei2691 | NEGATIVE | critical | 2 | 2025-03-03 07:44 |

| Has India officially become a one-party nation? 74 comments Whenever I see any individual criticizing the government for their incompetence and wrongdoings, they are always labelled as anti national, Pakistani, Muslim and what not. They are always disrespected in the country and no one even cares to listen to their opinions. Just because opposition criticizes the government, the whole Indian population suddenly assumes that they are anti national who have foreign funding. I mean when did critcising the government became an anti national move, its an incentive for parties to do better instead of hiding their failures and doing whataboutism on everything. | A 2 to 5 outdoor play in a country like India is brutal 195 comments I went out yesterday to play the Community Day as incense is not boosted anymore & it was brutal. In a tropical country like India the afternoons are extremely hot & humid. I really couldn't continue after a couple of hours as I started feeling super exhausted even after drinking a lot of water & walking in shade mostly. It started feeling like no game/no Pokémon is worth this much of trouble. I couldn't just go out & be at one place (a café/restaurant/mall) to play because the incense spawns stopped being boosted the moment i stopped. I think the boosted incense was a blessing, because it helped me & I'm sure a lot of people to stay at home & play in extreme hot or cold weather. The rise of hyper-regionalism risks civil unrest, distrust, and weakened national identity. We must urgently open a nationwide discussion on how to foster unity without erasing diversity. Strengthening common values, promoting inter-state collaboration, and rethinking federal governance models could be the key. This isn't just about politics—it's about national survival and security. |

Despite the fact that I have no contact with my friends from high school at this point and I rarely stay in touch with Indian politics or pop culture, I am still an Indian living in America. I take a lot of pride and joy in witnessing India's economic and cultural progress over time. My value system is pretty much at odds with "narrow mindedness" of some Indians (based on my observation among the extended family members), but I always figured that Indians will just become more aware of the social injustice around them and start uniting against them as it further develops economically. Maybe I bought into the whole Maslow's hierarchy a little too much. I am afraid to say that it has only gotten worse. |

For those who have been living under a rock, at the end of last year we confirmed that the India rework that was announced five years ago has been cancelled. With it seeming very unlikely that a new India rework will suddenly begin and be then finished within the next few years, India runs the risk of remaining as the oldest content in the mod never to receive any significant updates or refreshes. To attempt to address this, we have put together a smaller update to hopefully bring India at least somewhat up to date. |

Even the mighty soviet union didnt have that kind of power. It is an undeniable fact that most nations in the world are governed by corrupt people and CCP is effectively using it as an advantage. After buying off different governments and politicians, they dont have to care about ordinary people. Then, splashing money at the media, and they can change the whole narrative as we can see in the current epidemic. Scary thing is that even the most staunch activists are relatively silent about CCP atrocities while the rich are praising and kowtowing CCP. An MLA from the ruling BJP, who happened to be a Kuki tribal himself, was also attacked by the protestors. But to give context: The 1984 anti-Sikh riots, also known as the 1984 Sikh Massacre, was a series of organised pogroms against Sikhs in India following the assassination of Indira Gandhi by her Sikh bodyguards. The assassination of Indira Gandhi was in retaliation to her order to the Indian Army to attack the Harmandir Sahib complex in Amritsar, Punjab, in June 1984. The ruling Indian National Congress party had been in active complicity with the mob, as to the organisation of the riots. |

I take a lot of pride and joy in witnessing India's economic and cultural progress over time. My value system is pretty much at odds with "narrow mindedness" of some Indians (based on my observation among the extended family members), but I always figured that Indians will just become more aware of the social injustice around them and start uniting against them as it further develops economically. Maybe I bought into the whole Maslow's hierarchy a little too much. I am afraid to say that it has only gotten worse. |

Countries like Iran, Malaysia, Canada, and Mauritius have expressed diplomatic displeasure, and ties with even friendly Muslim-majority nations have frayed. Iran, historically one of India's closest strategic partners after Russia, publicly criticized India's handling of events like the Delhi riots and Gaza-related tensions, marking a sharp turn in relations. The Sanghis' relentless gawk gawk to Israel, ignoring the humanitarian crisis in Palestine—has inflamed anti-India sentiments across the Muslim world. |

Is—this what our democracy has come to—beating up journalists for asking questions? I just came across some seriously messed-up news from Newslaundry, and I'm boiling with anger. Rakesh Sharma, a senior journalist with Dainik Jagran, was assaulted and chased by BJP workers like some street thug, all because he dared to ask their leaders a simple question. The journalist's crime? Asking why security incidents continue to occur under the current administration. For this basic act of accountability, they decided he needed to be “taught a lesson” through violence. |

Indian agricultural products have increased dramatically in the last 10 years and I personally have supported them in the past because I thought it was a great idea. But the fact that India refuses to stop buying Russian Oil (there are alternatives) or Russian Weapons (there are alternatives) or demand that Russia stops their illegal war we might as well stop buying their stuff. |

His story, filled with danger, redemption, and sacrifice, resembles a real-life thriller that spans decades of Kashmir's insurgency. Now 56, Mushtaq walks quietly in the garden of his home in Pulwama, South Kashmir — a man once feared and revered, known by many names: James Bond, Romeo, and Ishfaq. Once a militant trained in Pakistan, he later switched sides, becoming a covert operative for the Indian Army and helping eliminate over 300 terrorists during his 36 years as an armed man. |

Is it on the state of the West Bank or the 90s/2019 or has it calmed down a bit? Are human right abuses still going on and are they as severe and as large? Also, I heard elections are currently being held too, how are they going? Do people still want freedom and separation from India? |
| 2019-09-01 07:44 | r/chutyapa | LinuxNoob9 | 113.0 | critical | An attack happened against Indian troops in Kashmir that left over 40 of their troops dead. There is outrage in India, but it is INCREDIBLY selective: 50 Kashmiris were murdered in Jan/Feb & 11,000+ Muslim women gangraped since 1989: facts which have repeatedly been met with silence by Indians 67 comments Typically—and this is what gets me angry—is that Islam WILL be blamed for this attack as a convenient excuse, when there is more than ample proof this has been caused by the actions of the Indian army. This is pretty much like Israel crying about it's soldiers dying when all they've been doing is systematically murdering Palestinians and stealing their land. They will conveniently paint this as "terrorism" when it isn't. |

Sure, violence has plummeted, but that doesn't mean that the Indian government would soften its stance against the separatists. Yes, not every Sikh separatist is a terrorist, but that didn't stop thousands of innocent people from losing their lives. The Khalistan movement will always be of vital importance to whoever rules India given the suffering it caused. That could be seen in the Indian government's response to the uptick in violent rhetoric, which led to the assassination in Canada. So by hosting the movement, isn't Canada asking for trouble? |

They are always disrespected in the country and no one even cares to listen to their opinions. Just because opposition criticizes the government, the whole Indian population suddenly assumes that they are anti national who have foreign funding. I mean when did criticising the government became an anti national move, its an incentive for parties to do better instead of hiding their failures and doing whataboutism on everything. Moreover, India has a clown and incompetent opposition who don't criticise the government on right issues and suggest solutions. It Never Did. 104 comments Another tragedy, another display of government negligence, another reminder that this country's priorities are completely fucked. This time, it's the stampede at a Delhi railway station, people crushed to death because of overcrowding, mismanagement, and a total lack of basic safety measures. Just another day in a nation that treats its citizens like disposable garbage. |

This post very quickly became a microcosm of the problems that this subreddit has when we talk about race. A lot of people felt hurt or let down by comments that they saw on that thread. Since then, there has been some follow-up discussion on the sub itself and a lot of concerned criticism in modmail. Firstly, I would like to give a big thank you to everybody who did reach out to us; your input was really important and I've drawn on it heavily for this write up. I am keeping usernames anonymous by default, but if you ask I will edit this post to give you credit. |

If you know anything about the situation, you'll realize that Kashmir is basically India's version of Palestine except there's a forced "one state solution" when the best solution for Kashmiris is a two state solution where they're independent and have self-determination. Kashmiris reject being Indian and they're absolutely right to given everything India has done to them. |

I have heard that there is no concept of Caste in Islam and Sikhism but even then it is practised in some form in India. It is because of this discrimination they receive reservation benefits based on caste. |
